CLIMATE CHANGE?

How often do we hear terms like ‘climate crisis’, or ‘climate catastrophe’ as the media gives a bleak picture of what humans are supposedly doing to the earth’s climate. Hollywood elites and politicians jump on board with the ‘climate scientists’ who promote doom and gloom for the earth. And anyone who questions the facts or the data is called a ‘climate denier’ and banned from social media posts by AI looking for the word ‘climate’ in anything that is put on the internet.

The UN warned that we had past the level of global warming and had reached the level of global ‘boiling’. But did the earth really break temperature records? Records have been kept only since the late 1800’s and geologic evidence points to several warm periods in the earth’s past – of which we have no written temperature records.

NASA published a graph with temperature anomalies from 1880 to 2023. These graphs use color to show a warming trend in red to emphasize it. The absolute average temperature of the globe ranges from a minimum value of 56.2 degrees F in 1904 to a maximum of 59.3 degrees F in 2023. So over the last 143 years of monitoring, the average temperature of the globe has risen only 3.1 degrees F.

Consider how much the temperature fluctuates throughout an average day. And yet people are supposed to panic over this small increase in the average. Satellite data indicates the earth has warmed only .15 degrees C each decade since satellite records started in 1979. And that the current warming was due to part of the earth experiencing an El Nino occurrence bringing warmer and drier air to various parts of the globe. But these naturally occurring events are ignored as the role of humans is blamed to allow the elites to implement control over the lives of those they wish to rule.

Those who are pushing an agenda of power through fear will go through the data and pick out one year or set of years to try to persuade those who do not know the big picture facts to give in to their demands. Aided by the media, they try to make man the controller of all things instead of God who created and sustains all things. God and His word are truth and the foundation on which we can take our stand.
